Education is important if not for getting a job then to at least be better at being a criminal. The news abounds, with criminals who would have benefitted from paying attention in school a little more. The too following storie's about criminals are real and somewhere there is a teacher saying "I'm not surprized."

18 year old Ruben Zarate wanted to rob a muffler shop in chicago and demanded money. Unfortunately it was mostly in the shop's safe. Zarate decided that he would try again later to save himself some time, he left his cell phone number with the store employees. That way they could call him when the manager returned and could open the shop safe.

Things was looking up, for Frank Singleton when he was released from jail. However when he realized that he didn't have a ride home he walked straight into the prison parking lot and attempted to carjack a woman. He was foiled when he realized that he couldn't drive a car with a stick shift. As he was re-arrested - this time for felony carjacking - Singleton told police that he simply "didn't feel like walking." We've all been there.
